“ Growing up, I always wished that I had a sister. So when I met my husband Mike (Marilyn’s little brother) I was happy to find that he had 7 sisters! It did take me awhile to remember who was who. Because we were both wives of dairy farmers (who talked on the phone every day during milking) we developed a special bond that lasted all these years. I couldn’t have loved a blood-related sister more than I loved Marilyn. Mike loved her deeply too! We will both miss so much her phone calls that were filled with concern for us and happy stories about her great-grandsons. And she always made sure to tell me that I was taking good care of her little brother. Never a word of complaint or self-pity! In fact, during our last phone call she said “I can’t complain, so many people have it worse than I do.” That was Marilyn!☐
Have fun in heaven dear sister! ❤️❤️
